

In any relationship, you need to find a speed you both enjoy.

Someone not doing something they want is not as bad

Even if one of you wants to go faster, they must respect the person who wants to keep it slow.

but the only way to know for sure is to talk about it.

but instead
a lovely journey you can share.

as making someone else do something they don't want to do.

If you cannot agree,
maybe you are not well matched

HOW to LOVE

Hannah writes:

I just started a relationship & I don't know how fast or slow we should take it. Please help?

In a relationship, there isn't a grand destination you are racing racing towards

